U. S.-MEXICO MAY BREAK DIPLOMATIC BOND

EXCHANGE OF 4 NOTES BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENTS

COMPLETE DISAGREEMENT REGARDING MEXICAN ALIEN LAND AND OIL LAWS

AFFECTING ONE BILLION DOLLARS OF AMERICAN PROPERTY RIGHTS

By LUDWELL DENNY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 24—A break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico was freely predicted here today following an exchange of four notes between the two governments.

The notes revealed complete disagreement over application of the Mexican alien land and oil laws, affecting $1,000,000,000 of American property rights, but did not mention the underlying friction between the two governments over alleged Mexican radical activities in Central America.

Secretary Kellogg's concluding note of Oct. 30 was interpreted in informed quarters as a virtual ultimatum that a rupture will result if Mexico enforces its law invalidating oil titles of Americans, who refuse to exchange before Jan. 1 such titles for fifty-year "concessions."

Describing the situation as "extremely critical" and reminding Mexico it obtained United States recognition only only on condition that confiscatory provisions of its 1917 constitution and later laws would not be applied retroactively, the Kellogg note closed with this warning:

"The issues have been plainly defined, and my government in conclusion reasserts that it expects the government of Mexico, in accordance with the true intent and purpose of the (Warren-Payne) negotiations of 1923, culminating in the recognition of the government of Mexico by this government to respect in their entirety the acquired property rights of American citizens which have been the subject of our discussion, and expects the Mexican government not to take any action until the laws in question and the regulations issued in pursuance thereto, which would operate, either directly or indirectly to deprive American citizens of the full ownership, use and enjoyment of their said properties and property rights."

Mexico denied, in its notes of Oct. 7 and Nov. 17, that the United States in recognizing Mexico had attached any strings or conditions. The Mexican argument may be summarized as follows:

1. Since both agree to principles and disagree on application of the laws, the only solution is to await concrete cases in which Americans are supposed to have suffered, then Mexico "will be disposed to repair such violations."

2. The Warren-Payne agreement has "no binding force" similar to a treaty, as claimed by the United States, but was merely a declaration of policy which the Mexican government has tried to observe.

1. The disputed laws attempt an unjustifiable conversion of vested interestes into mere optional rights and then, by an illegitimate application of the artificial theory of positive acts, complete destruction of such interests.

2. The United States will not recognize provisions of these laws exacting from Americans under pain of forfeiture a waiver of their right to seek protection of property rights from their own government.

NEW INDICTMENTS AGAINST DELANO MAN

St. Paul, Nov. 24.—(UP)—New indictments have been returned against George W. Dodge, former president of the First National bank of Delano, charging him with misapplication of the bank's funds. On four counts, he is charged with embezzling $9,000 of the bank's funds and converting them to his own use.

Dodge was indicted June 6, 1925, on 17 counts, alleging that he embezzled more than $90,000, but most of these were dismissed and only one went to trial, resulting in acquittal by a jury.

The indictments were returned by a federal grand jury here and were revealed Tuesday when they were delivered to the federal court clerk at Minneapolis.

RAIDERS ATTACK CIVIC GUARD IRISH BARRACKS

Dublin, Nov. 24.—(UP)—Twelve raiders attacked Knockanore civic guard barracks today, seized the guard records and fled after an exchange of shots. None was reported injured.

Knockanore barracks is in an isolated mountainous district in the west of County Waterford.

Similar attacks have taken place frequently during the past 10 days. During earlier attacks there were several casualties, among them a police sergeant who was shot dead. Saturday the Free State government proclaimed a state of emergency to exist.

ISHPEMING RECOVERING FROM DISASTER

MINE CAVEIN OF NOVEMBER 3 SNUFFED OUT 51 LIVES

ACCIDENT ON MICHIGAN RANGE SIMILAR TO CUYUNA RANGE

Ishpeming, Mich., Nov. 24.—(UP)—This little mining town, one of the oldest iron mining towns in the United States, is slowly recovering from the mine disaster of Nov. 3, when the lives of 51 of its stalwart citizens were snuffed out.

The cave-in at the Barnes-Hecker mine which was followed by a rush of water and quicksand into the upper levels of the mine, was one of the greatest mining disasters in the upper Michigan peninsula.

Widows, whose husbands' bodies are still in the sand-filled workings, are readjusting themselves to the conditions at hand and are patiently waiting for the time when the remains of their men will be brought home to them.

Thanksgiving day has come and will go and there is every evidence that Christmas will come and go and perhaps another Yule season will be upon the stricken city before all the bodies will have been recovered.

Work is now under way in the shaft at the first level, 600 feet from the shaft cellar. The water has been lowered to the top of the first level, but here there is timber wreckage, boulders and sand that is holding up the rescue work.

The rains and melting snows have left considerable surface water and some of it has been finding its way along the ledge and into the shaft.

S. R. Elliott, general superintendent, announces that the work must proceed slowly as he does not want to expose a single member of the rescue crew to unnecessary danger.

The work is being carried on on a 24 hours a day basis.

Many of the widows of the victims, hearing through unofficial sources that the mine was going to be sealed and the miners buried where they fell, approached officials and pleaded with them not to take this step. Elliott personally informed each caller that it was his intention to spend every cent the company could command to recover the bodies and return them to their families.

EXPLOSIONS AND FIRE DAMP RAGE

SEARCH FOR TEN MEN ABANDONED AT THE PRESENT TIME

ONLY ONE BODY HAS BEEN BROUGHT TO THE SURFACE

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 24.—(UP)—Hope for the rescue of nine men still entombed in the McGillivray coal mine at Coleman, Alberta, following an explosion early Tuesday morning has been abandoned.

Fires are raging in the mine, making rescue work impossible below No. 1 level. Mine officials are now making preparations to flood No. 4 level to control the blaze.

Several explosions followed the initial blast Tuesday and rescue workers were forced from the pit after locating three bodies, only one of which could be brought to the surface.

Deadly after-damp had killed the men in the opinion of the rescuers, as the three men whose bodies were located, showed signs of having made a desperate effort to reach the surface.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 24.—(UP)—Explosions and fire have driven rescue crews from the McGillivray mine at Coleman, Alberta. Search for nine men entombed by an explosion early Tuesday has been abandoned for the present. Only one body has been brought to the surface. Two others have been located, but not removed.

Seven crews have been driven from the workings by recurrent explosions and an outbreak of fire, believed due to gas and dust.

The rescuers brought the body of R. Fairful to the surface and reported the bodies of two other miners, Alex Morris and D. Meek, were in a mine car in the main entry, but heavy clouds of gas made their recovery impossible now.

Twenty-eight men were in the mine at the time of the explosion and eighteen made their way to safety.

The blast level is an hour's walk from the surface.

There was no intimation that there had been a disaster in the deeper workings of the mine until men from numbers 2 and 3 levels rushed out of the mine entrance at 7 A. M., two hours after the explosion, and reported they had heard the sound of the blast and immediately had hurried to safety.

Mine inspectors were notified and efforts were organized for rescuing the men, the Blairmore rescue crew being sent into the mine.

The crew had proceeded but a short distance when another explosion deep in the pit was heard and they were ordered out.

Miners who had gone to other parts of the mine to close off sections and prevent spread of gas were also compelled to return to the surface. Three more explosions followed in quick succession with the result that rescue teams were unable to proceed into the mine throughout the afternoon.

Fire broke out in No. 4 level early last night and rescue work was again made impossible.

PRESIDENT CHARLES DONNELLY ANNOUNCES MONTANA PROGRAM

2 MAJOR RAILROAD DEVELOPMENTS GET UNDER WAY

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 24—(UP)—A $4,000,000 expansion program in Montana was announced here today by Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific railway.

The money will be spent on two major railroad developments, one a branch line from Glendive, Mont., northwest to the vicinity of Brockway, on the Red Water river, a distance of approximately 63 miles, opening up one of the richest agricultural regions in the eastern part of the state at a cost of about $3,000,000.

The other development will be a 25-mile line from Florence, Mont., through Stevensville to Hamilton, on the east side of the Bitter Root river. A portion of a spur on the west bank of the river will be abandoned. Cost will be $1,000,000.

"The new construction," said Donnelly, "will give railroad service to a considerable acreage of highly productive, irrigated land, especially adapted to growing sugar beets.

"It is expected that a large factory will be established at Missoula, Mont., by the Amalgamated Sugar Company."

RAISING LEVEL OF GREAT LAKES

Washington, Nov. 24.—(UP)—Construction of piers and dams in the outlet rivers to raise the level of the great lakes is recommended by the joint board of United States and Canadian engineers, appointed to survey the St. Lawrence waterways situation, in a report made public today. The report estimated $36,400,000 will be required for the proposed construction work.

Let Us Be Thankful

By DR. ROY L. SMITH

LET us this year be thankful for the humble servants who have served us faithfully and well without mutiny or advertising.

Let us be thankful for the matter-of-fact American hen who, without labor troubles or union regulations, produced 1,200,000,000 dozen eggs last year and added thereby $312,000,000 to the nation's income. Biddy is one of our largest and most reliable industries.

Let us be thankful for the contented American cows which produced last year 325,000,000 pounds of cheese, 1,356,000,000 pounds of creamery butter and 52,770,000,000 pounds of milk for household use. No congressional committee ever had to investigate Bossy's business.

Let us be thinkful for the good natured American sheep which grew 301,000,000 pounds of wool as it roamed the hillsides, and then surrendered every pound without organizing a revolt or making a campaign issue of it.

Let us be thankful for the songs of the wild birds, sweeter than the notes of any prima donna. These feathered songsters are never bothered with temperament or professional jealousy; they sing for rich and poor alike and are always ready with an encore regardless of the attitude of their audience. Yet none of them was ever known to bring on nervous prostration because it could not own two nests at the same time.

Let us be thankful for the sunsets which no artist can paint and which no man can own; for the flowers with the mint-marks of divinity upon them; for the trees with the charity of God within their branches and the rain which has fallen upon the just and the unjust.

Let us be thankful for the white corpuscles of the blood which have stood guard over the nation's health during the past year, saving us from plagues and epidemics.

Let us be thankful for the stars that shone through the nights, without a city inspector to supervise or a department of government to regulate them.

Let us be thankful for the activity of the electrons which have kept the world vital with energy, for the ultra-violet rays which have kept the world sanitary and for the unseen waves of power which have meant life and being to all creation.

For all the servants of man, seen and unseen, which have this year labored without thought of reward or hope of advancement, fulfilling their destiny, let us be thankful.

Student teams are entered from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, Illinois, California, Wyoming and Iowa universities and Penn State, Colorado Agricultural, Clemson, Oklahoma A. & M. and Kansas Agricultural colleges.

Eight state agricultural colleges also will send teams to compete in a crop judging contest, a feature of the exposition since 1923.

Federal and state department of agriculture experts will be present during the exposition to interest farmer visitors in modern methods of preventing grain rust and controlling plant diseases.

While exhibition of saddle horses is always a major attraction, exposition officials report a renewed interest in breeding of draft horses. Entries in this class total 469 head, an increase of more than 100 over last year. Most of them were winners of blue ribbons at state or county fairs this summer.

SECRETARY OF NAVY ASKED TO TESTIFY

SUBPOENA ISSUED AT REQUEST OF CHIEF COUNSEL FOR DEFENSE

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 24. — A subpoena for the Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to furnish secret state documents in relation to the Japanese "war scare" of 1921-22 has been issued by Supreme Court Justice Hoehlung, trying the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy case.

The subpoena was issued at the request of Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for the defense, who has maintained that his client, E. L. Doheny, oil millionaire, agreed to lease the oil reserves and store the naval oil on the Pacific coast because naval officials had informed him of the necessity for battleship fuel in the Pacific at that time.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur today was served with a subpoena to furnish the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial with information on the "Japanese war scare" of 1921-22, as Josephus Daniels, naval secretary under President Wilson, appeared to testify for the prosecution as to government oil policy before 1921.

Owen Roberts, heading prosecution counsel, opened the third day of the trial of former Secretary of the Interior Albert Fall and Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in the Elk Hills naval oil lease by introducing "groundwork" evidence, including navy documents. Secretary Wilbur will not appear personally as a witness unless he is specifically ordered to do so, he said this morning.

The subpoena calling on him to produce navy records and reports of the 1921-22 Japanese war scare was served upon the secretary this morning.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The government today started in the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial its attempt to trail the famed $100,000 Doheny loan made to the former secretary of the interior.

The westerners told in drawling tones of selling their New Mexican ranch to Albert B. Fall, their neighbor and Harding cabinet member, for $91,500 five days after Fall's co-defendant, E. L. Doheny, had made the $100,000 loan — once called the "little black bag" loan, but now noted as the "brown satchel" loan.

Other developments included:

1. The government asked Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to produce secret official records of the 1921-22 "Japanese war scare" which Doheny will cite as a reason for executing the Elk Hills leases.

2. Wilbur indicated he will send the records to the trial, but it was deemed probable they would be read to the jury in secret session, if Wilbur requested.

3. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration, testified he never gave any leases on the Elk Hills reserves.

4. Defense cross examinations of the two ranchers, Will Ed Harris and A. O. Brownfield, brought out that Fall and four or five other persons were present at the sale negotiations in Fall's office in El Paso and that Fall never suggested the sale be kept a secret.

5. The government announced its intention of calling Sen. Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, once chairman of the senate oil committee to the stand today.

Will Ed Harris, New Mexico rancher, one of the heirs of the Harris ranch purchased by Fall in 1921, after the Doheny-Fall $100,000 loan on Nov. 30, was called to the stand.

Atty. Pomerene developed that Fall summoned him to El Paso, Tex., to close the ranch sale.

The contract of sale between Fall and the Harris estate from the sale of the ranch cannot be found, Har-

SECRETARY OF NAVY ASKED TO TESTIFY

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 24. — A subpoena for the Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to furnish secret state documents in relation to the Japanese "war scare" of 1921-22 has been issued by Supreme Court Justice Hoehlung, trying the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy case.

The subpoena was issued at the request of Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for the defense, who has maintained that his client, E. L. Doheny, oil millionaire, agreed to lease the oil reserves and store the naval oil on the Pacific coast because naval officials had informed him of the necessity for battleship fuel in the Pacific at that time.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur today was served with a subpoena to furnish the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial with information on the "Japanese war scare" of 1921-22, as Josephus Daniels, naval secretary under President Wilson, appeared to testify for the prosecution as to government oil policy before 1921.

Owen Roberts, heading prosecution counsel, opened the third day of the trial of former Secretary of the Interior Albert Fall and Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in the Elk Hills naval oil lease by introducing "groundwork" evidence, including navy documents. Secretary Wilbur will not appear personally as a witness unless he is specifically ordered to do so, he said this morning.

The subpoena calling on him to produce navy records and reports of the 1921-22 Japanese war scare was served upon the secretary this morning.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The government today started in the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial its attempt to trail the famed $100,000 Doheny loan made to the former secretary of the interior.

The westerners told in drawling tones of selling their New Mexican ranch to Albert B. Fall, their neighbor and Harding cabinet member, for $91,500 five days after Fall's co-defendant, E. L. Doheny, had made the $100,000 loan — once called the "little black bag" loan, but now noted as the "brown satchel" loan.

Other developments included:

1. The government asked Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to produce secret official records of the 1921-22 "Japanese war scare" which Doheny will cite as a reason for executing the Elk Hills leases.

2. Wilbur indicated he will send the records to the trial, but it was deemed probable they would be read to the jury in secret session, if Wilbur requested.

3. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration, testified he never gave any leases on the Elk Hills reserves.

4. Defense cross examinations of the two ranchers, Will Ed Harris and A. O. Brownfield, brought out that Fall and four or five other persons were present at the sale negotiations in Fall's office in El Paso and that Fall never suggested the sale be kept a secret.

5. The government announced its intention of calling Sen. Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, once chairman of the senate oil committee to the stand today.

Will Ed Harris, New Mexico rancher, one of the heirs of the Harris ranch purchased by Fall in 1921, after the Doheny-Fall $100,000 loan on Nov. 30, was called to the stand.

Atty. Pomerene developed that Fall summoned him to El Paso, Tex., to close the ranch sale.

The contract of sale between Fall and the Harris estate from the sale of the ranch cannot be found, Har-

Let Us Be Thankful

By DR. ROY L. SMITH

LET us this year be thankful for the humble servants who have served us faithfully and well without mutiny or advertising.

Let us be thankful for the matter-of-fact American hen who, without labor troubles or union regulations, produced 1,200,000,000 dozen eggs last year and added thereby $312,000,000 to the nation's income. Biddy is one of our largest and most reliable industries.

Let us be thankful for the contented American cows which produced last year 325,000,000 pounds of cheese, 1,356,000,000 pounds of creamery butter and 52,770,000,000 pounds of milk for household use. No congressional committee ever had to investigate Bossy's business.

Let us be thinkful for the good natured American sheep which grew 301,000,000 pounds of wool as it roamed the hillsides, and then surrendered every pound without organizing a revolt or making a campaign issue of it.

Let us be thankful for the songs of the wild birds, sweeter than the notes of any prima donna. These feathered songsters are never bothered with temperament or professional jealousy; they sing for rich and poor alike and are always ready with an encore regardless of the attitude of their audience. Yet none of them was ever known to bring on nervous prostration because it could not own two nests at the same time.

Let us be thankful for the sunsets which no artist can paint and which no man can own; for the flowers with the mint-marks of divinity upon them; for the trees with the charity of God within their branches and the rain which has fallen upon the just and the unjust.

Let us be thankful for the white corpuscles of the blood which have stood guard over the nation's health during the past year, saving us from plagues and epidemics.

Let us be thankful for the stars that shone through the nights, without a city inspector to supervise or a department of government to regulate them.

Let us be thankful for the activity of the electrons which have kept the world vital with energy, for the ultra-violet rays which have kept the world sanitary and for the unseen waves of power which have meant life and being to all creation.

For all the servants of man, seen and unseen, which have this year labored without thought of reward or hope of advancement, fulfilling their destiny, let us be thankful.

TURKEY HOLDS LEAD IN THANKSGIVING FARE

Goose, Chicken and Other Fowls Try for First Place on Holiday Board

CITY PREPARED TO CELEBRATE

Special Thanksgiving Services Will be Held in Various Churches

Tomorrow, Minnesota will celebrate its seventy-seventh annual Thanksgiving day in accordance with the proclamation of Governor Theodore Christianson. For many years the last Thursday in November has been the official day of celebration but up to 1858 the day was in December, somewhere between tenth and the twenty-third, but always Thursday. In 1858, acting Governor Henry H. Sibley advanced the date to November 25 and succeeding governors followed this precedent, fixing the day as the last Thursday in November. Thursday will also mark the 305th anniversary of the first official day of Thanksgiving initiated by the Pilgrim Fathers.

There will be special Thanksgiving services in the various churches after which the much anticipated "Thanksgiving dinner" with turkey an' everything will be enjoyed. The turkey has held the honor of being the official festive bird since the first Thanksgiving day but now the goose, chicken and other fowls vie with the famed gobbler for first place on the holiday board. According to advices from the department of agriculture when selecting a Thanksgiving turkey, one should be sure to ascertain the amount and quality of flesh on the body, especially on the breast, back and hips. Examine the bird with its back up, that is the best way to tell how plump it is, experts said. Plenty of flesh means plenty of meat for carving and there should be a generous amount of fat to insure a moist tender turkey. To tell a turkey's age, feel the end of the breast or keel bone and examine the spurs on its feet. The department further advised that while young birds are usually the choice for roasting, almost any bird can be cooked so that it will be tender.

This year's turkey crop is about as large as last years and prices are probably about the same, University Farm experts and crop statisticians made known in a recent statement.

The Thanksgiving dinner menus have not changed very much from those given twenty-five years ago, when turkey, sweet potatoes, cranberries, nuts, figs, raisins and pumpkin pie held sway. Today the turkey dinner might include fruit cups of grapefruit, white grapes and pineapple, roast turkey, and cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes and baked squash, creamed onions, celery, lettuce salad with French dressing, coffee, raisins and nuts, pumpkin pie with whipped cream. Another menu might be introduced by oyster cocktails, celery and olives, followed by roast chicken and cranberry jell, southern style sweet potatoes, corn custard, pickled peaches, cabbage and green pepper salad, vanilla ice cream, with maple syrup sauce, chopped nuts,sponge cake and coffee.

Due to the various schools many poor and needy families will also be able to give thanks, made possible by the generous contributions from families who provided food and clothing, sent out and distributed by welfare workers in the city.

The United Commercial Travelers will give a dance in the U. C. T. auditorium, Thursday evening, and many family reunions will take place at various homes, all tending with the traditaional turkey, to make this Thanksgiving a gala one.

"If You Were God"

If you were God and God were you,
And he were given a holiday
To go to church to praise and pray,
And then he feasted and stayed away
Without a thought of God or prayer,
Or thanks for a year of loving care,
If you were God and God were you,
Say—what would you do?

If you were God and God were you,
And a nation set a day for prayer,
And only one had time to spare
For every hundred that didn't care!
Would you believe they were sincere,
And bless that nation again next year?
If you were God and God were you,
Say—what would you do?

If you were God and God were you,
And millions professed a faith to you
As giver of all good gifts and true,
But never said thanks or thought it due,
But then when trouble came their way
Expected your help without delay—
If you were God and God were you,
Say—what would you do?

Muscle Has Red Cells

The muscles of the human body, it has recently been discovered, are filled with a red coloring substance almost identical with that in the red blood cells of the blood. The amount of this red substance seems to determine largely the power of the muscle, and it disappears rapidly if the muscle is paralyzed, thus showing the importance of exercising in keeping the muscles in trim.

Improving Big Waterway

Construction of a permanent bridge across the Rhine river has been decided upon by the German authorities. This will not only remove the old pontoon bridge, which has more or less obstructed Rhine navigation, but it will also serve in promoting the transportation development of southwest Germany and in removing certain traffic disadvantages to the reich by attracting much traffic hitherto routed over indirect lines.

Thoughts of Worth Call for Expression

These two forms of silence—the silence of communion and the silence of repression—spring from beautiful and sterling foundations. But in themselves they are incomplete, and individual lives, though enriched, are never fulfilled through them. Mysticism and martyrdom must be related to living issues through expression, or they degenerate the one into introspective solitude, the other into narrowness of judgment, says a writer in the North American. Lives become sterile which might have been rich, had experience been translated into utterance.

The ministration of words is indeed a blessed ministry. Because there are so many idle words, so many harmful words, so many insincere and bitter and malicious ones, we must not stumble into the mistake of believing that silence of itself has golden merit. There is the silence of indifference or self-consciousness, of carelessness or weariness; there is the lazy silence, the silence which grows from a sense of futility, or from contempt and pride. Silence, no less than inaction, may be a form of selfishness. As the laws of harmony exist without music, so may all that is fundamentally beautiful in human life exist without words.

BRAINERD LINKED WITH SHORTER ROUTE TO CHICAGO

BRAINERD is linked with another set of highways which now offers a shorter Chicago route. New paving, graveling, make a scenic highway available for us in all weather.

The State Highway department has sent out a bulletin calling attention to the matter in this language, and linking our newly completed paved section on No. 27 with the new route named.

Motorists in Crow Wing county who have occasion to make trips to Chicago will be interested in a bulletin from the State Highway department announcing that the short route through Winona, Minn., and Sparta, Wis., now has an all-weather surface. It links our newly completed paved section on No. 27 with the new route named.

Pavement on Minnesota Trunk Highway No. 3 was formally opened Nov. 17 and Wisconsin T. H. No. 29 has been graveled east from La Crosse. While it is not a completed road in either state, enough has been done to assure good going at all times.

Minnesota No. 3 is now paved from Winona to Wabasha, from Lake City to Red Wing and from Newport to Sauk Centre, except a five mile stretch in Stearns county to be paved next spring. Pavement will be laid next year from Newport to near Hastings. From Hastings to Red Wing and from Lake City to Wabasha there is good graveled road. When these stretches are paved, it will be on new location, so that no detour will be necessary. Contracts have been let for 6.5 miles of grading and 15.7 miles of paving on No. 3 between Winona and La Crosse. The Wisconsin highway department has announced that no work will be done on Wisconsin No. 35 next year between Winona and La Crosse, so this road will be available until No. 3 is completed.

The Wisconsin roads from La Crosse to Madison follow a scenic route, but until this year they have been unsurfaced and slippery in wet weather. Motorists will now be able to go on graveled roads via Hilbourn until they reach the pavement at Columbus after which they can follow the pavement through Watertown and Milwaukee to Chicago. This route has been renumbered 16, to correspond with the U. S. numbers. Those who prefer to go via Madison can follow U. S. numbers that way also on gravel to Madison and a choice of routes, mostly paved, to Chicago.

Minnesota T. H. No. 3, following the Mississippi from La Crosse to St. Cloud, will be one of the most beautifully scenic highways in the Northwest, rivalling the famous North shore drive. From St. Cloud the motorist may continue along the Mississippi by taking the recently completed pavement on No. 27 to Brainerd.

"The new section between Minnesota City and Minneiska above the river bottoms, with a clear view of the blue Wisconsin bluffs in the distance, ranks, in our opinion, with the best America has to offer from the scenic viewpoint," says the Winona Republican Herald. "Then too the road seems to make those towering Minnesota bluffs stand out more strikingly and more attractively. It is hard to realize that less than ten years ago it was hard to get over this Minnesota City-Minneiska trail along the river with a horse and buggy, and most of the time it was impossible for an auto."

AMERICA HAS REASON TO BE THANKFUL

DESPITE a year marked with disasters, fires, floods, and hurricanes, we Americans still have many reasons for returning thanks on this Thanksgiving Day, says an editorial in a recent issue of Liberty.

"Compare the condition of the worst off of Americans with that of the average citizen of any other country," it says, "and you will see that we in the United States have reason for setting aside a day of solemn rejoicing. Our people are the best fed, the best dressed, the best housed. They have more comfort, conveniences, and far more luxuries than any other nation.

"We are at peace with the world, at peace among ourselves. Capital is prosperous and more generous than the capital of any other country. Labor is the best paid and has the shortest hours of any of the world's workers. If, this Thanksgiving, you are inclined to kick, it will be because the knife is dull and not because you haven't a turkey to carve."

MIDWEST MOTORIST

THE Midwest Motorist of Kansas City, Mo., in its November issue, under a headline, "Paving Between Twin Cities and Brainerd, Minnesota," stated:

"The Brainerd Chamber of Commerce of Brainerd, Minnesota, sponsored a splendid celebration November 13. The occasion was the completion of the paving between the Twin Cities and Brainerd.

"Many of our members who spend their summers in the Minnesota lake region will be delighted to learn that this link in the highway is now concreted."

Alice M. Chalmers is editor and has twice issued special numbers of the magazine on our lake region.

ALL OF NORTHERN MINNESOTA PROFITS

THE Park Rapids Enterprise, speaking of the Brainerd Paving Celebration, says in part in a current issue:

"Brainerd staged a big celebration last Saturday (Nov. 13) when the new stretch of paving between that city and Belle Prairie was opened to public travel.

"The pavement now extends from Brainerd, through Little Falls and St. Cloud to the cities and on south to Steele Centre, near the southern boundary of the state, a distance of 214 miles. From Brainerd good gravel roads extend west, north and east, to accommodate travel to the points of special interest in the lake region and the northern part of the state. All of northern Minnesota will profit from travel over this main artery.

COUNTRY SCHOOL PROGRAMS

WE are glad to publish country school news and programs. No charge is made. However, should the teacher desire to run the same item more than one time, then, of course, the matter ceases to be news and the repetition incurs charges.

The publicity accorded the country school socials and benefits, etc., aids in bringing attendance and so assists to make the affair a success.

"SOME WILD NOTIONS I HAVE KNOWN"

By the REV. ROY L. SMITH, D. D.
Pastor Simpson M. E. Church, Minneapolis

"GREAT TALKERS ARE NOT GREAT DOERS"

Yet some of the greatest workers of the world have been the greatest talkers.

Confucius, the Chinese sage, travelled all over China for nearly thirty years, often under the most difficult and dangerous conditions, always talking and teaching wherever he could find an audience to listen. Today his wisdom influences the life of China more deeply than that of any man who ever lived and it is probable that more human beings follow his teachings than those of any other man who ever lived.

John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, was one of the busiest talkers England has ever produced. Few men in all the world ever talked more or to more people than he did. Yet his life of talk resulted in the Methodist Church and, to quote certain great historians, "saved England from a French Revolution."

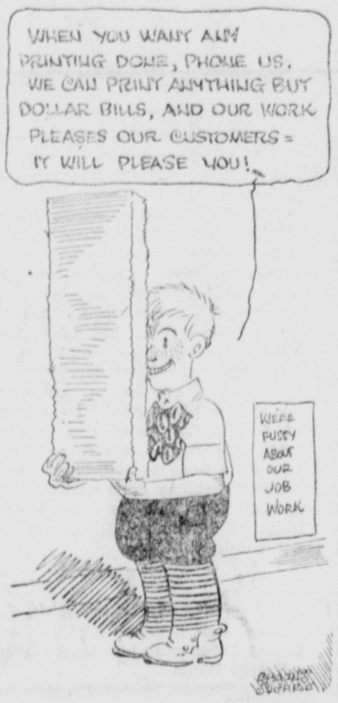

America has never produced a greater talker than Theodore Roosevelt. No man who ever sat in the presidential chair ever spoke to larger audiences than he, or more frequently. Yet who, even among his enemies, would presume to say that he was not a great doer. The record of his two administrations is crammed full of the account of his achievements.

Peter the Hermit, an indefatigable talker, went throughout Europe preaching the duty of Christendom in rescuing the Holy City from the rule of the Infidel, and with his talk influenced the history of Europe for a thousand years.

Martin Luther, a little Wittenberg monk, went everywhere talking. Yet he was also a great doer for, in addition to voluminous writings and translations, his talking resulted in an upheaval that shook Europe to its foundations.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

Nov. 23, 1901

Mrs. G. W. Vanderslice of Grand Forks arrived in the city this morning and is visiting with Mrs. N. H. Ingersoll and other Brainerd friends.

Mrs. C. E. Cole gave a very pleasant party yesterday afternoon at her home in honor of the birthday anniversaries of herself, Miss Maggie Atherton and Mrs. J. W. Slipp. The ladies all had a very pleasant afternoon.

A large moose which was brought down from the Aitkin country yesterday afternoon attracted considerable attention at the Northern Pacific depot this morning. It was one of the largest that has ever been shot in the northern part of the state.

George Kenny of Winnipeg has arrived in the city to accept the position as stage manager of the new Brainerd opera house. Mr. Kenny worked in the Winnipeg theatre controlled by Manager Walker of the Red River Valley circuit and is an experienced man in this line of work. He will also attend to the bill posting and paper. Mr. Kenny expects to move his family to this city from Winnipeg and will make his home here in the future.

J. Ralph Nevers, well and popularly known in this city, has been appointed chief usher. Chas. W. Hoffman has been appointed treasurer. Mr. Hoffman is also a popular and well known young man of the city. Prof. Graham will have charge of the orchestra. The first of the week two new men will arrive in the city to accept positions in the orchestra and it is proposed to make this feature of the new house one of the most important. Manager Walker's other houses are exceptionally well equipped in this regard. Prof. Graham's long experience in band and orchestra work will prove valuable.

Further evidence of improper kidney function is often found in burning or scanty passage of secretions. A Life Saver for Your Car

EXCEPT in the case of accidents, cars die a gradual death. Dr. Clare E. Griffin of the University of Michigan has made some interesting estimates from statistics on the length of life of automobiles.

In his "Life History of the Automobile" he says that of any 100,000 automobiles beginning life at the first of any year, 220 will be junked the first year; 2,051 the second; 4,400 the third; 6,750 the fourth; 8,920 the fifth; and 10,670 the sixth; etc.

What sends some cars to the scrap heap while others of the same age are still serving a useful life?

Faulty lubrication in most cases. That is the most important single cause for the premature demise of automobiles.

Keep your car perfectly lubricated with Polarine and you will literally save its life. Polarine is the most perfect protection that could be devised for the motor of an automobile. Heat and friction cannot break its tough film. You can depend on Polarine to protect all the moving parts of the engine at all times.

Polarine is the result of years of experience and scientific work. It is one of the major products of an organization that is noted for its absolute dependability.

Polarine is a life saver for an automobile and a worry saver for the man who drives it. If you have had trouble with your car, you will appreciate the pleasure of driving a car that runs smoothly—a car that is properly lubricated.

Polarine will save your car from the junk heap and it will promote a smooth performance that will add immeasurably to the pleasure of motoring.

Have the crankcase drained out today, cleaned with Polarine Flushing Oil, and refilled with the particular grade of Polarine made expressly for your car.

Standardized Quality

Coach $780, f. o. b. Detroit

FINEST of FOURS $750 F.O.B. DETROIT FOR COUPE

Startling Contrast between Chrysler "50" and Other Fours

Consider the price of the Chrysler "50"—the Coupe $750, Roadster $750, (rumble seat extra), the Coach $780, the Sedan $830.

Then, if you will picture the Chrysler "50" on the one hand, and the only four remaining four-cylinder cars of large production on the other, the amazing difference between them will make your choice an astonishingly simple matter.

Since the Chrysler "50" is the product of the revolutionary Chrysler engineering and manufacturing plan of rigid inflexible Standardized Quality for all four Chrysler cars, it is evident that the "50" cannot help but yield its 50 miles per hour, 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, 25 miles to the gallon—indefinitely—under conditions which would incapacitate any other four or, for that matter, any ordinary six.

Place them side by side in your mind's eye—these five cars—and then, even though you may not have realized it before, it becomes perfectly obvious that—at its price—plain common-sense logic makes the selection of Chrysler "50" inevitable.

MRS. SARAH E. HEALD COMPLETES PAINTING

"Wings of Dawn" Depicts Beautiful River Scene Near Clark Lake

NOW ON EXHIBITION

Is Daughter of Col. Freeman Thorpe, Internationally Recognized Artist

Mrs. Sarah E. Heald, 715 North Fifth street, daughter of the late Col. Freeman Thorpe, famous painter whose art is internationally recognized, has just completed a painting of "Wings of Dawn," depicting a river and landscape scene near Clark Lake where she has been on location this summer.

The painting is truly a work of art, considered the best she has yet attempted, and should bring her wide recognition.

The painting is at present on display in D. E. Whitney's store on Front street, and may be viewed there by those interested.

A picture of an Indian seated in a birch bark canoe, watching intently the flight of ducks overhead adds a vivid touch to the reality of the scene.

Col. Freeman Thorpe, father of Mrs. Heald who died five years ago, living at Hubert, became famous through his paintings of notable and government officals at Washington, D. C., where he maintained a studio. He painted a portrait of Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg which was later purchased by the United States government in 1910 and now hangs in the Congressional Library, Washington, D. C.

Bobbie Knew

Little Bobbie's mother took him to Sunday school every Sunday. She also taught a Sunday school class, and during this time Bobbie was left in the junior department. On this particular Sunday his mother had several occasions to pass through the junior department and on each occasion she noticed that one or more of the little boys would be crying, but Bobbie was always sitting up in his little red chair like a little man.

On arriving home Bobbie's mother said, "Dear, I was surely proud of you today; you didn't cry at all and so many of the other children were crying."

She noticed that Bobbie hung his head, then she added, "Why were they crying?"

"'Cause I'se pinching them," truthfully answered little Bobbie.

Blocked by Butterflies

Blocked by a cloud of butterflies was the experience of three travelers in a light automobile in Ceylon recently.

The butterflies descended with smothering impact, says Popular Mechanics, producing the sensation of having been struck by a cotton hammer, according to one of the party who described the "attack." The wheels of the auto skidded and with difficulty made headway through the thousands of tiny bodies which covered the car and its occupants, forcing the men to shield their faces. The stifling encounter lasted seven minutes, when the butterfly legions were left behind. Millions of the insects gather in close formations such as this during migration.

Seek Antiques in West

Antique hunters of the West are tossing off the yoke of the Eastern seaboard in the search for Americana and are dragging forth relics of California's colonists to honored places at their firesides. Branding irons of the early California ranches are quite as much of a fad with Californians as the old glass or highboys of the Eastern coast. The collection of branding irons has its experts, although a comparatively new development, and also has brought a nice calculation of values. Most of the branding irons are being used in Spanish-style interiors as fireplace furnishings.

$90 REALIZED BY LIBRARY BENEFIT

High School Orchestra Opens Attractive Entertainment in Auditorium

PLAYLET WAS GIVEN

Students of Brainerd Schools Take Part in Program Monday Evening

The performance at the high school for the benefit of the Public Library was a complete success from every standpoint. The financial returns were very gratifying—from the admissions and the lunch $90 were realized, enough to make the tremendous effort in putting on the performance thoroughly worth while. Those who attended expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the program in all its variety; for there was no monotony of repetition, from the opening numbers of the orchestra to the final lines in the play.

The orchestra showed a very fine handling of their numbers—the notes were exquisitely played and with feeling. The selected chorus of thirty-two voices from the larger glee club sang with precision an very sweet melody—both of the high school musical selections show much credit to Miss Rickard.

The boys' glee club from the Harrison brought down the house, first with its turkey gobbler and then for the very real beauty of their singing. Miss Effie Drexler accompanied them at the piano.

The little drama enacted by the Whittier students was exceedingly interesting and well done. The beloved characters from the favorite children's stories appeared in costume before the circle of boys and girls and brought back memories to the people in the audience as well as to those in the play. The mixed chorus from the Lowell, directed by Miss Williams, showed very thorough training and sang with ease and harmony and a thorough mastery of their songs.

The patriotic element was introduced in the dramatization by the Lincoln school where a chorus sang songs appropriate to the girls who entered, showing the many phases of the American girl. It was very clever and elicited much applause.

Two little boys who appeared for the Riverside enjoyed their little dialog as much as did the audience. The moral they pointed in 'As Mr. Clean sees it' was very obvious. The Garfield representative sat in the audience all ready for his part of the entertainment, but didn't understand when his number was announced, as he was so very little, so the audience was deprived of hearing him.

The extra-school number was a song and encore by Dr. Badeaux, who sang with the ease and feeling that he always puts into his songs—giving the audience great pleasure.

Last on the program was Wm. Dean Howell's famous farce—The Mousetrap—where five ladies mount on chairs to escape a mythical mouse invented by the hero to test the ladies' courage. The play was much appreciated, if one is to judge from the laughs it evoked. The actors who were in their first performance did very well and merited their applause. Verne McNamara, the only man, did exceptionally well and shows great promise for the future. Martha Remmels deserves mention for the very fine interpretation of her part. Hazel Coenon made a very fetching maid and simulated terror very realistically. The screams of fear, and shrieks of distress of Celeste Johnson, Esther Gallagher and Viola McKay awoke response in the minds of timorous ladies, for perched on chairs and tables they showed all the emotions of ladies in similar positions. They read their lines well—Margaret Armstrong, as the feminine lead, made an attractive hostess, distraught with fear of the mouse and wrath at her lover.

The library board wish to thank all the teachers who labored so diligently to produce this program, and all the children who gave of their time and their ability for the sake of the library. Dr. Badeaux's songs were much appreciated.

Quite apart from this, the members of the board labored valiantly and long, for much food was required and provided, and many people served and dishes washed. The brunt of the labor and that for the lunch fell upon Mr. and Mrs. Lind. The benerosity of those who were asked to contribute for the lunch was great and the food both good and plentiful. All in all, the whole affair was very successful and the rewards satisfactory.

Mr. Grabb's Mind

President Guth of Goucher college said in an address in Baltimore:

"Most people think there is only one kind of success—financial success, wealth. That, as a matter of fact, is one of the lowest forms of success. As often as not it indicates a mind like Mr. Grabb's.

"Mr. Grabb sat in the orchestra of a motion picture theater one evening and directly above him in the top gallery sat an errand boy. The errand boy had brought a package of sandwiches along in order to make the evening more enjoyable, but in opening the package accidentally let it fall into the orchestra at Mr. Grabb's feet.

"Mr. Grabb picked it up, chose a sandwich and began to eat; but after a mouthful or two he frowned up at the errand boy in angry reproach.

"'Why didn't you put mustard on them, you young rascal!' he shouted."

Hydraulic Stop-Watch

A "hydraulic stop-watch" has been perfected by an Indiana inventor, for use in timing racing cars.

An ordinary three-quarter-inch garden hose is used, says Scientific American Magazine. It is laid across the track at the starting point, connected with a cylinder barrel and both filled with water. When the driver is qualifying on the track the front wheels of his machine pressing upon the hose force the water into the cylinder barrel, which operates a lever, in turn starts a stop watch, and as the driver crosses the hose again it stops the watch.

Hospital's Color Scheme

A color scheme has been worked out for the different rooms at the hospital of the University of Denver. The X-ray room has walls of a violet red, which has great light absorption power. In the operating room a soft gray is used. The wards for disturbed patients have yellowish green walls because this color has been found to have a tranquilizing and cheerful influence. Rooms with a northern exposure have yellowish walls, and those with a southern outlook have sunshine gray walls and furnishings.

UNIVERSITY DAILY CRITICIZES RILEY

"MAN—IS HE AN EVOLUTION OR A REVELATION?"

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 23. —(UP)—An editorial in the University Daily today criticized the series of lectures on fundamentalism, delivered before the student body by Dr. W. B. Riley, of Minneapolis, pastor of the First Baptist church, as having yielded little to his listeners except "realization that Dr. Riley is a very fine orator."

The editorial was written after Dr. Riley had delivered the fourth and last of his series of lectures, entitled, "Man—Is He an Evolution or a Revelation?"

This lecture was given yesterday. The Daily continues to say that "Why Dr. Riley believes as he does and exactly what the basis of his opposition to the teaching of the theory of evolution is" was not told because the clergyman "persisted in arguing false issues."

Dr. Riley's arguments are called "flimsy" and his manner of presenting them "that of the revivalist and not the scholar," leaving his listeners "very little disturbed."

The governor and eight companions were arrested in the raid Monday and Herbet C. Hall, when advised earlier today that someone would plead guilty announced that all charges against other members of the party would be dropped.

MRS. SARAH E. HEALD COMPLETES PAINTING

"Wings of Dawn" Depicts Beautiful River Scene Near Clark Lake

NOW ON EXHIBITION

Is Daughter of Col. Freeman Thorpe, Internationally Recognized Artist

Mrs. Sarah E. Heald, 715 North Fifth street, daughter of the late Col. Freeman Thorpe, famous painter whose art is internationally recognized, has just completed a painting of "Wings of Dawn," depicting a river and landscape scene near Clark Lake where she has been on location this summer.

The painting is truly a work of art, considered the best she has yet attempted, and should bring her wide recognition.

The painting is at present on display in D. E. Whitney's store on Front street, and may be viewed there by those interested.

A picture of an Indian seated in a birch bark canoe, watching intently the flight of ducks overhead adds a vivid touch to the reality of the scene.

Col. Freeman Thorpe, father of Mrs. Heald who died five years ago, living at Hubert, became famous through his paintings of notable and government officals at Washington, D. C., where he maintained a studio. He painted a portrait of Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg which was later purchased by the United States government in 1910 and now hangs in the Congressional Library, Washington, D. C.

Bobbie Knew

Little Bobbie's mother took him to Sunday school every Sunday. She also taught a Sunday school class, and during this time Bobbie was left in the junior department. On this particular Sunday his mother had several occasions to pass through the junior department and on each occasion she noticed that one or more of the little boys would be crying, but Bobbie was always sitting up in his little red chair like a little man.

On arriving home Bobbie's mother said, "Dear, I was surely proud of you today; you didn't cry at all and so many of the other children were crying.

She noticed that Bobbie hung his head, then she added, "Why were they crying?"

"'Cause I'se pinching them," truthfully answered little Bobbie.

Blocked by Butterflies

Blocked by a cloud of butterflies was the experience of three travelers in a light automobile in Ceylon recently.

The butterflies descended with smothering impact, says Popular Mechanics, producing the sensation of having been struck by a cotton hammer, according to one of the party who described the "attack." The wheels of the auto skidded and with difficulty made headway through the thousands of tiny bodies which covered the car and its occupants, forcing the men to shield their faces. The stifling encounter lasted seven minutes, when the butterfly legions were left behind. Millions of the insects gather in close formations such as this during migration.

Seek Antiques in West

Antique hunters of the West are tossing off the yoke of the Eastern seaboard in the search for Americana and are dragging forth relics of California's colonists to honored places at their firesides. Branding irons of the early California ranches are quite as much of a fad with Californians as the old glass or highboys of the Eastern coast. The collection of branding irons has its experts, although a comparatively new development, and also has brought a nice calculation of values. Most of the branding irons are being used in Spanish-style interiors as fireplace furnishings.

$90 REALIZED BY LIBRARY BENEFIT

PLAYLET WAS GIVEN

Students of Brainerd Schools Take Part in Program Monday Evening

The performance at the high school for the benefit of the Public Library was a complete success from every standpoint. The financial returns were very gratifying—from the admissions and the lunch $90 were realized, enough to make the tremendous effort in putting on the performance thoroughly worth while. Those who attended expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the program in all its variety; for there was no monotony of repetition, from the opening numbers of the orchestra to the final lines in the play.

The orchestra showed a very fine handling of their numbers—the notes were exquisitely played and with feeling. The selected chorus of thirty-two voices from the larger glee clubs, sang with precision and very sweet melody—both of the high school musical selections show much credit to Miss Rickard.

The boys' glee club from the Harrison brought down the house, first with its turkey gobbler and then for the very real beauty of their singing. Miss Effie Drexler accompanied them at the piano.

The little drama enacted by the Whittier students was exceedingly interesting and well done. The beloved characters from the favorite children's stories appeared in costume before the circle of boys and girls and brought back memories to the people in the audience as well as to those in the play. The mixed chorus from the Lowell, directed by Miss Williams, showed very thorough training and sang with ease and harmony and a thorough mastery of their songs.

The patriotic element was introduced in the dramatization by the Lincoln school where a chorus sang songs appropriate to the girls who entered, showing the many phases of the American girl. It was very clever and elicited much applause.

Two little boys who appeared for the Riverside enjoyed their little dialog as much as did the audience. The moral they pointed in 'As Mr. Clean sees it" was very obvious. The Garfield representative sat in the audience all ready for his part of the entertainment, but didn't understand when his number was announced, as he was so very little, so the audience was deprived of hearing him.

The extra-school number was a song and encore by Dr. Badeaux, who sang with the ease and feeling that he always puts into his songs—giving the audience great pleasure.

RAINBOWS OPEN SEASON DEC. 4TH WITH SUPERIOR

FAST COMBINATION OF LOCALS WORKING HARD TO WIN OPENER

SEVEN GAMES BOOKED TO DATE, OTHERS BEING ARRANGED BY MANAGER

The Rainbows will open the basketball season on Dec. 4th against the Superior team, the game to be played at the local high school gym. The Superior quint comes to Brainerd with a high reputation won in other years of basketball playing, and a fast game is looked for.

For Brainerd, the first team combination will be chosen from among these players: Engbretson, Larson, Welsh, Beresford, Orth, Lawrenz, Hartley, Ericsson, Fitzsimmons and Nutting. These players have been working hard for several weeks getting into shape for the opening contest, and will give the fans a good exhibition of basketball.

Manager Peterson has arranged seven contests to date, a return game with Superior on Jan. 22, two games with Wright, here on Dec. 18 and at Wright on Jan. 21, home and home games with Isle on Jan. 8 and 29, and a tentative game booked with the Whiz Bang Globe Trotters on Dec. 31. THREE AITKIN MEN STATE HIGH SHOTS

H. KALLAND OF BRAINERD WAS SECOND HIGH SHOT IN MINNESOTA FOR SEASON

Aitkin is credited with three of Minnesota's 23 high score registered shoot marksmen, and that ought to be good enough. The Sportsman's Review, Cincinnati, in reviewing the standings of the best marksmen of seven states gives Dave Fauskee of Worthington first place for Minnesota with a score of 1,752 targets out of 1,810 shot during the season, an average of .9679. He was once the winner of the North American championship.

H. Kalland of Brainerd is second in Minnesota, with a score of 1,558 out of 1,630 and an average of .9558.

A. Kothe, E. J. Goward and J. F. MacGregor are the Aitkin men in the high list. Kothe broke 958 registered targets out of 1,030, average .93; Goward 1,082 out of 1,170, average .9247; MacGregor 918 out of 1,030, average .8912.

Aitkin men have a wide acquaintance in the registered target meets and have always put up good work and have won many honors. Now that Minnestoa is to organize an association of 100 men to maintain their identity in the sport — and they're to be known as the Chippewas—Aitkin will be represented in the organization by these three men. When the number is filled no more will be accepted only in case of vacancies from time to time.—Aitkin Independent-Age.

SECTIONAL AND NATIONAL RIVALRY SHOWN

CADET GRAY MEETS NAVY BLUE IN CHICAGO'S FRONT YARD

AT GRANT PARK STADIUM ON LAKE MICHIGAN'S SHORE

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Sectional and national football honors will be at stake here on Saturday when the Cadet Gray meets the Navy Blue in Chicago's front yard—Grant Park Stadium on Lake Michigan's shore.

If the Navy beats the Army, the east will have a pretty fair hold on the national title, while if the Army is victorious, Notre Dame which has beaten most of the best teams out this way in addition to the Army will have every right to put up the howl that the 1926 team of "49 horsemen" has done what the 1924 team with its "Four Horsemen" did.

In addition to having an interest in what the Army can do against the Navy, the middle west is anxious to see what Murrell, the galloping goat of the Army backfield, can do against the Navy's line. While playing for the University of Minnesota in 1925, Murrell won fame by denting some of the cast iron lines in the Western Conference.

Another midwestern point of interest is in Bill Ingram, who is coaching the Navy. For the past two years Ingram coached Indiana, one of the perennial weak sisters of the Western Conference. This year, with Navy material to draw from, Ingram had produced a team that is plenty good and some western sympathies will be with "Navy Bill."

In addition to the football spectacle Chicago is all excited about the social aspect of the game. Last night and today one thousand girls received invitations for the dance—a fotoball dance—preceding the Waterloo for one of the two teams.

Preceding the annual service gridiron contest there will be a ball, and 1,000 girls including society buds, university co-eds, and Chicago's most attractive stenographers, will nestle their cold shoulders against the blue of the Navy dress uniform or the gray of the Army full dress.

The soldiers and the sailors are scheduled to leave their schools at Annapolis and West Point today.

On arrival here they will be given some time to themselves, and then will reassemble for the dance. At noon on the day of the game they will parade through Chicago's loop, will root for their teams and will assemble after the game to return east.

Chicago has absorbed every ticket for the game not spoken for by students and alumni of the two schools, Washington legislators and their friends.

Ticket agencies are openly advertising by window signs and in the newspapers: "We have Army-Navy tickets."

Scalpers are getting prices of from $30 to $250 per seat, depending on how near the seat available is to the fifty yard line. Indications are that hundreds of persons who have bought tickets thinking they would have a good view of the game, might have gotten a better view from some skyscraper in the loop, four blocks away.

Historic Portrait

A portrait of Benjamin Franklin was carried away from Franklin's home in Philadelphia by Major Andre. Andre gave it to General Grey, who took it to England. Earl Grey, a descendant, sent the picture back to the United States with the request that it be placed in the White House, and President Roosevelt agreed to do so.

RAINBOWS OPEN SEASON DEC. 4TH WITH SUPERIOR

SEVEN GAMES BOOKED TO DATE, OTHERS BEING ARRANGED BY MANAGER

The Rainbows will open the basketball season on Dec. 4th against the Superior team, the game to be played at the local high school gym. The Superior quint comes to Brainerd with a high reputation won in other years of basketball playing, and a fast game is looked for.

For Brainerd, the first team combination will be chosen from among these players: Engbretson, Larson, Welsh, Beresford, Orth, Lawrenz, Hartley, Ericsson, Fitzsimmons and Nutting. These players have been working hard for several weeks getting into shape for the opening contest, and will give the fans a good exhibition of basketball.

Manager Peterson has arranged seven contests to date, a return game with Superior on Jan. 22, two games with Wright, here on Dec. 18 and at Wright on Jan. 21, home and home games with Isle on Jan. 8 and 29, and a tentative game booked with the Whiz Bang Globe Trotters on Dec. 31. Other games are being scheduled for the open dates.

The Rainbows have added to their equipment three new uniforms, making a total of ten complete outfits, and have also added ten new sweat shirts of natty appearance, making them one of the best equipped basketball teams of the northwest.

THREE AITKIN MEN STATE HIGH SHOTS

H. KALLAND OF BRAINERD WAS SECOND HIGH SHOT IN MINNESOTA FOR SEASON

Aitkin is credited with three of Minnesota's 23 high score registered shoot marksmen, and that ought to be good enough. The Sportsman's Review, Cincinnati, in reviewing the standings of the best marksmen of seven states gives Dave Fauskee of Worthington first place for Minnesota with a score of 1,752 targets out of 1,810 shot during the season, an average of .9679. He was once the winner of the North American championship.

H. Kalland of Brainerd is second in Minnesota, with a score of 1,558 out of 1,630 and an average of .9558.

A. Kothe, E. J. Goward and J. F. MacGregor are the Aitkin men in the high list. Kothe broke 958 registered targets out of 1,030, average .93; Goward 1,082 out of 1,170, average .9247; MacGregor 918 out of 1,030, average .8912.

Aitkin men have a wide acquaintance in the registered target meets and have always put up good work and have won many honors. Now that Minnestoa is to organize an association of 100 men to maintain their identity in the sport — and they're to be known as the Chippewas—Aitkin will be represented in the organization by these three men. When the number is filled no more will be accepted only in case of vacancies from time to time.—Aitkin Independent-Age.

CADET GRAY MEETS NAVY BLUE IN CHICAGO'S FRONT YARD

AT GRANT PARK STADIUM ON LAKE MICHIGAN'S SHORE

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Sectional and national football honors will be at stake here on Saturday when the Cadet Gray meets the Navy Blue in Chicago's front yard—Grant Park Stadium on Lake Michigan's shore.

If the Navy beats the Army, the east will have a pretty fair hold on the national title, while if the Army is victorious, Notre Dame which has beaten most of the best teams out this way in addition to the Army will have every right to put up the howl that the 1926 team of "40 horsemen" has done what the 1924 team with its "Four Horsemen" did.

In addition to having an interest in what the Army can do against the Navy, the middle west is anxious to see what Murrell, the galloping goat of the Army backfield, can do against the Navy's line. While playing for the University of Minnesota in 1925, Murrell won fame by denting some of the cast iron lines in the Western Conference.

Another midwestern point of interest is in Bill Ingram, who is coaching the Navy. For the past two years Ingram coached Indiana, one of the perennial weak sisters of the Western Conference. This year, with Navy material to draw from, Ingram had produced a team that is plenty good and some western sympathies will be with "Navy Bill."

In addition to the football spectacle Chicago is all excited about the social aspect of the game. Last night and today one thousand girls received invitations for the dance—a fotoball dance—preceding the Waterloo for one of the two teams.

Preceding the annual service gridiron contest there will be a ball, and 1,000 girls including society buds, university co-eds, and Chicago's most attractive stenographers, will nestle their cold shoulders against the blue of the Navy dress uniform or the gray of the Army full dress.

The soldiers and the sailors are scheduled to leave their schools at Annapolis and West Point today.

On arrival here they will be given some time to themselves, and then will reassemble for the dance. At noon on the day of the game they will parade through Chicago's loop, will root for their teams and will assemble after the game to return east.

Chicago has absorbed every ticket for the game not spoken for by students and alumni of the two schools, Washington legislators and their friends.

Ticket agencies are openly advertising by window signs and in the newspapers: "We have Army-Navy tickets."

Scalpers are getting prices of from $30 to $250 per seat, depending on how near the seat available is to the fifty yard line. Indications are that hundreds of persons who have bought tickets this way would have a good view of the game, might have gotten a better view from some skyscraper in the loop, four blocks away.

Historic Portrait

A portrait of Benjamin Franklin was carried away from Franklin's home in Philadelphia by Major Andre. Andre gave it to General Grey, who took it to England. Earl Grey, a descendant, sent the picture back to the United States with the request that it be placed in the White House, and President Roosevelt agreed to do so.

HOWARD CURRY, N. P. ROAD OFFICIAL, DEAD

General Mechanical Superintendent of Road, Passed Away Last Night

TO BE BURIED HERE

Started Notable Career in Brainerd as a Fireman in 1883

Howard Curry who started his railway career in Brainerd with the Northern Pacific railway in 1883 as a fireman on the road and worked his way up the ladder to general mechanical superintendent of the N. P. railway system, died in a St. Paul hospital last evening at 7:45 o'clock at the age of 67 years. He had retired from active service with the railway company in which he was highly respected two years ago.

Death was indirectly due to sleeping sickness which he had contracted in 1923 and it is stated that he never recovered from the effects.

Mr. Curry's career is one which is the envy and pride of every employee of the Northern Pacific railway, a life of industrious forging ahead from the position of an obscure fireman who stowed coal into the firebox for a living to that of a general mechanical superintendent whose master mind controlled the mechanicism of the entire system.

From fireman he received promotion to engineer and from there he was promoted to road foreman of engines. In 1897 he left Brainerd and became master mechanic at St. Paul, later being made general master mechanic. His success in this position gave him a higher position, that of general master mechanical engineer and from which he was later promoted to general mechanical superintendent of the entire system.

He was a member of the Masonic order of Brainerd.

The funeral will be conducted in St. Paul and the body will be shipped to Brainerd on Train No. 9 Saturday for interment in the Evergreen cemetery.

Surviving are his wife and son, Benham Curry, of St. Paul; also a sister-in-law, Mrs. James M. Hayes, Brainerd.

Office Here Waiting for Shipment of Snow Plows to Clear Roads

Roadmen in the employ of the district office of the State Highway Department are at present working on the putting up of 16 miles of snow fencing where needed to protect state highway roads in the district.

This amount of fencing represents approximately 80 thousand feet to protect the roads.

The district office of the State Highway Department are waiting anxiously for their allotment of snow plows, to be in readiness for heavy snowfalls.

Ring in the Sun

In 1924 during the total eclipse of the sun there was a peculiar phenomenon referred to as "the diamond ring." It was the result of an optical illusion or an illustration of irradiation. Photographs taken of this gave the impression of a ring set with a solitaire.

PAVING MOVIES IN TWIN CITIES

Now Showing in Pathe News Reel at Orpheum Theatre in Minneapolis

HOLIDAY CROWDS GREAT

Also Showing at Two Large Theatres in St. Paul, Tower and Astor

W. R. Hiller, manager of the F. & R. theatres in Brainerd, anxious to run the Pathe news reel showing the Brainerd Paving Celebration, has received this letter from J. Branton, Finkelstein & Ruben booker:

"Replying to your wire of the 23rd wish to advise that the Brainerd pavement reel is now being shown in both Minneapolis and St. Paul.

"It is running in three first run houses, the Orpheum in Minneapolis and the Tower and Astor in St. Paul.

This is the most wonderful Twin Cities publicity ever accorded the Brainerd Pavement Celebration and the cause of cement highways in Minnesota. It is showing to crowded houses afternoon and night. All the football crowds for the Michigan-Minnesota game, all the Thanksgiving holiday crowds swarming to the Twin Cities this week, all the big commercial and manufacturing interests have the chance to see this film.

Never was a more opportune time to give pictorial publicity and all Brainerd may well be pleased with the cooperation shown by Finkelstein & Ruben.

In the eighteen piece home talent orchestra which was recently organized and which will present a musicale under the auspices of the Methodist Ladies Aid on the evening of November 29, at the Methodist church besides the violins in the string section are the piano and cello. These instruments are taken by Mrs. Norman Ziebell and E. A. Page.

She has had experience in vaudeville and chautauqua work as trumpet player with a girl's sextet.

Mr. Page needs no introduction to Brainerd audiences as he is well known as the director of the local Boys band. He can play any band or orchestra instrument but has put his most extensive work on the trumpet, violin, and piano. He has studied the theory of music under prominent teachers and has had much experience as the director of various bands, perhaps the most interesting years of which, he directed the band with Buffalo Bill's Wild West circus.

In the brass section of the orchestra are two trumpets and two trombones.

William Nurmio, first trumpet player became a musician, as in the case of many an immortal in music, despite the opposition of his parents. When yet a child in his native country of Finland he would steal away from his home to play the accordion for dances. Some one taught him the scale on the violin and from this small beginning and with no more formal lessons he has learned to play several instruments.

Dale Sanders, another of the younger musicians of whom Brainerd may be proud [illegible] the first chair [illegible] in the Boy's band and [illegible] very competent work in the [illegible]ra.

Henry Krause has been one of our most public spirited men in musical fields. He came to Brainerd from St. Cloud when a very young man and is one of the few old timers who played with the original Municipal band under Director Dreskel. He has played with each Brainerd band that has been organized since that time and with all concert orchestras, perhaps the most pretentious of which was that under the leadership of Edwin Bergh.

Miss Emily Mraz is the heroine of the exploding sky rocket episode at Wadena, the Minneapolis Journal in its report calling her the "silver cornetist" notwithstanding. She also has become famous for her trombone solo work in the "Mournful Maggie" selection, featured by the Brainerd Ladies band.

Wolf Draws $500 Bounties; Was Accused of Killing Sheep on Farms

A great grey gaunt timber wolf, said to weigh 150 pounds, which has been stalking sheep and molesting farmers around Park Rapids has been shot by Dr. H. J. LaDue, of Red Wing, who passed through this city last evening on his way home following a deer hunt.

For weeks the community around Park Rapids have been worried over the appearance of a timber wolf which has been killing sheep and stealing meat and provisions from meat sheds on farms. Liberal bounties have been offered for the wolf's killing but though all hunters in that district joined in the search they were unable to bring down the wolf.

The bounties resulting from rewards offered amount to over $500, it is stated.

HOWARD CURRY, N. P. ROAD OFFICIAL, DEAD

General Mechanical Superintendent of Road, Passed Away Last Night

TO BE BURIED HERE

Started Notable Career in Brainerd as a Fireman in 1883

Howard Curry who started his railway career in Brainerd with the Northern Pacific railway in 1883 as a fireman on the road and worked his way up the ladder to general mechanical superintendent of the N. P. railway system, died in a St. Paul hospital last evening at 7:45 o'clock at the age of 67 years. He had retired from active service with the railway company in which he was highly respected two years ago.

Death was indirectly due to sleeping sickness which he had contracted in 1923 and it is stated that he never recovered from the effects.

Mr. Curry's career is one which is the envy and pride of every employee of the Northern Pacific railway, a life of industrious forging ahead from the position of an obscure fireman who stowed coal into the firebox for a living to that of a general mechanical superintendent whose master mind controlled the mechanicism of the entire system.

From fireman he received promotion to engineer and from there he was promoted to road foreman of engines. In 1897 he left Brainerd and became master mechanic at St. Paul, later being made general master mechanic. His success in this position gave him a higher position, that of general master mechanical engineer and from which he was later promoted to general mechanical superintendent of the entire system.

He was a member of the Masonic order of Brainerd.

The funeral will be conducted in St. Paul and the body will be shipped to Brainerd on Train No. 9 Saturday for interment in the Evergreen cemetery.

Surviving are his wife and son, Benham Curry, of St. Paul; also a sister-in-law, Mrs. James M. Hayes, Brainerd.

"DON'T TELL THE WIFE," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce; but Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. He secretly discovers that she loves another man, Abner Gratman. Stivner, lumber king with whom Ranny has pending a gigantic business deal, wagers fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the International Match. Victory will mean business good will. Ranny learns that the wager is with—Abner Gratman! Abner flirts with Joan as the game progresses. This unnerves Ranny, and he loses the game for the Americans. Vengeful, he drives the ball over the sidelines at Abner, but hits Stivner! After the game, when he goes to take Joan home, he finds her gone—apparently with Abner.

CHAPTER VI

The dried-blood red of the October twilight glowed dully behind a stark bank of tall locust trees to the west of the exclusive club's grounds. It stained the landscape near and far with a spectral russet tinge. A sombre, melancholy color. A shadowy color that matched the depression in Ranny's heart; the loneliness, the sere bleakness of autumnal night and fading love.

Had he come to the autumn of his married life with Joan? Were the withering leaves dropping in the once bright garden of their love, to bloom no more?

Would the frost of love's winter soon tighten its white fingers around Joan's heart and freeze hard the remembrance of springtime's eager fires? Hide forever under the snow and ice of indifference the picture of the dashing knight of polo field and battlefield who had ridden, redolent with high romance, into the hitherto unbreached fortress of her heart in the warm May of new love?

His pained, puzzled eyes staring at the emptiness of his car, Ranny stood as one in a trance, saying nothing, thinking everything. He gulped hard once or twice. That was the only outward revelation of his hurt.

Then he felt a friendly, sympathizing grip upon his arm.

It was Clay, who had also remained silent up to this, under the spell of his chum's gloomy mood. Now he said gruffly:

"Where shall I go?" bitterly. "Home to an empty house? To sit and twiddle my thumbs until my wife feels she can suffer along for awhile without the enchanting company of her—lover?"

"Ranny!"

"Oh, I'm sorry!" cynically. "I suppose I am a bit of a cad. It isn't that I mistrust Joan's virtue, I hope, please God, that it hasn't gone that far—yet. But with a woman of Joan's decided will and strong passions—"

"Yes, I understand. It will be one way or the other, very positively. There's no compromise in her make-up. She'll be flamingly loyal to you until you actually give her a divorce. She's that rare sort of woman who can be proud of her virtue without posing as a martyr."

Ranny nodded. It was good to hear Clay speak well of Joan. But then—the fly in the ointment buzzed up under the nose of his consciousness:

"True enough—until she's convinced that I won't give her a divorce! Then, because she's too firm to compromise, she'll just coolly and deliberately, as one might come to any ordinary social or business decision, let herself go!"

Ranny paused, wistfully contemplating the space where Abner's roadster had been parked, and the road where patently it had sped away with the precious freight of his staunch affection.

"Lord, it hurts to think of so fine a woman as Joan throwing herself away on so worthless a lounger as Gratman. Gosh, I wouldn't mind half so much if it were some worth while blighter who had vamped her, some chap with at least one or two redeeming traits—like you, for instance!"

"Thanks!" Clay hastily shoved Ranny into the sedan and got in beside him. "But let's be rolling. Drive to town. To the club. We'll have dinner there and talk over what's to be done. Maybe it will be just as well if Joan doesn't find patient little hubby toasting his toes by the fireside and sniffing over her empty slippers and negligee when she tiptoes in!"

The vast field was practically deserted now as they slipped along a poplar lined gravel driveway toward the main road outside. A strange contrast to the vivid scene of the afternoon—the interplay of flashing mallets and brilliant hued jerseys and sleek ponies against a base of rich green and a background of social splendor on the sidelines. The elite crowd had melted away in its numerous fleet of costly equipages. Far across the bare field, single file in the dusk and silhouetted against the afterglow, grooms were leading the tired little polo ponies to hard earned rest and oats in their distant stables.

Only two or three cars remained still parked. They belonged to those of the players who lingered jovially over the "ninth" chukker in the clubhouse.

Usually the life of such a party, Ranny would have been sorely out of place in there at present.

He swung the big car out upon the smooth concrete of the Jericho Turnpike and morosely headed cityward, into the dying light of the day.

"I appreciate your coming with sour me, Clay, old rowdy, when you might just as well have stayed in there"—indicating the clubhouse with a jerk of his thumb back over his shoulder—"with more cheerful company."

"Bother your appreciation, old son. If there's anyone who understands you it's I. Come, now, tell papa—what's it all about anyway?"

Ranny drove turgidly, with the moody concentration of the sick at heart.

"Oh, you must know that Joan and I haven't been getting along since a month or two after our elopement. Simply couldn't seem to get our tempers to dovetail. The old, old story of two decided personalities clashing—and with all of give and none of take on both sides!"

"You admit, then, a certain culpability?"

"Yes, certainly, up to the time I first began to suspect that another man had entered the case. Since then I've had little spirit to fight much. But before that—well, I'm no sweet angel child, you know. We were, neither of us, chickens of a tender age when we married. Joan was going on for thirty, and right at the full swing of a successful career as an interior decorator—"

"Yes," chuckled Clay, "with all her family's tons of money and no end of swank and pride, she had too much gumption to be an idle society belle. To tell the truth, Ranny, I was surprised when she gave up, even for you, her work as an interior decorator—"

"Huh!" interrupting with a wry grunt, "merely a change in designation! She's been an exterior decorator ever since—decorating me with wrinkles and grey hairs!"

"It was just Joan's nature to elope once she did fall in love. She has positive passions! For ten years every other eligible bachelor in the Register had been setting his chops for her, but she would have none of them. I wonder what fatal attraction you had that you were able to sweep her off her feet—"

"Whatever it was, I've lost it evidently. And Abner Gratman has found it," bitterly.

"Splitting Gratman's head open with a polo ball wouldn't have helped you to recapture it!" Clay warned sharply.

Ranny started visibly. "You knew? Well, I was beside myself—"

"—and trying to pick up split milk with a pitchfork! It can't be done. Now I know that a dessicated and encrusted woman hater like me can't give you remarkably sage advice concerning how to manage a wife, but it seems to me that with a little diligent self-study you might be able to discover what quality it was that you had, but haven't now, that made you interesting to a woman like Joan. Then recapture it."

"I wonder—"

"That's just the trouble! You wonder too much—and do too little. Your conjectures roam afield when doubtless the solution is nearer home. It was something in the essential pattern of your personality that she liked. Perhaps you've grown too domesticated—and she liked you wild."

"Then"—protestingly.

"Patient, my child! Don't combat truth. Before you eat your heart out assertain if they have really stepped over the bounds. Set a trap for Joan and Abner. If they're living in shame catch them with the proof!"

More Than Year Spent in Producing Ingram's "Mare Nostrum"

Rex Ingram can always be depended upon to bring something worth while to the screen. With "Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea), his latest production for Metro-Goldwyn, which comes to the Park theatre Saturday and Sunday, the youthful director has again delivered one hundred per cent. It is a powerful modern drama produced and directed by a master craftsman.

Ingram took his entire company to Europe and spent more than a year producing the famous Blasco Ibanez story on the original locations described by the noted author in his book.

Olive Borden and Geo. O'Brien in "Fig Leaves" at Lyceum

"Fig Leaves," the new Fox Film comedy-drama which is now showing at the Lyceum Theatre, takes us back to that far away time when Adam and Eve got the idea that two can live as cheaply as one and decided to give it a try in the Garden of Eden.

Men and women being what they are, life in Paradise was not different from the life of today, for as usual she hadn't a thing to wear.

The highlight of the modern sequence is an elaborate fashion revue which has been photographed in Technicolor, a new process that shows the gorgeous gowns in all the beauty of their original coloring.

Zane Grey Romance-Drama Opens at Lyceum Thursday

Paramount has filmed another of those red-blooded stories from the facile pen of Zane Grey, and this high-powered western drama, "Forlorn River," will make its local debut tomorrow at the Lyceum Theatre.

As in all Zane Grey productions, the locations were chosen with the greatest fidelity possible to the actual locale of the original story. In this instance, Zion National Park in Utah was used as a background.

WANTS TO BREAK SHELL OF CAPITALISM

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—(UP)—Breaking of the shell of capitalism, out of which will come a new social order where profits of industry will accrue to the man who earns them, was predicted for the next quarter century by Bishop William Montgomery Brown in an address here. Bishop Brown was ousted from the Protestant Episcopal church for uttering heresies against the established order.

Ligening the working class to a chick in a shell, the deposed ecclesiastic declared that capitalism must be broken if workers are to get the "abundant life" promised by the christian religion.

"DON'T TELL THE WIFE," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce; but Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. He secretly discovers that she loves another man, Abner Gratman. Stivner, lumber king with whom Ranny has pending a gigantic business deal, wagers fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the International Match. Victory will mean business good will. Ranny learns that the wager is with—Abner Gratman! Abner flirts with Joan as the game progresses. This unnerves Ranny, and he loses the game for the Americans. Vengeful, he drives the ball over the sidelines at Abner, but hits Stivner! After the game, when he goes to take Joan home, he finds her gone—apparently with Abner.

CHAPTER VI

The dried-blood red of the October twilight glowed dully behind a stark bank of tall locust trees to the west of the exclusive club's grounds. It stained the landscape near and far with a spectral russet tinge. A sombre, melancholy color. A shadowy color that matched the depression in Ranny's heart; the loneliness, the sere bleakness of autumnal night and fading love.

Had he come to the autumn of his married life with Joan? Were the withering leaves dropping in the once bright garden of their love, to bloom no more?

Would the frost of love's winter soon tighten its white fingers around Joan's heart and freeze hard the remembrance of springtime's eager fires? Hide forever under the snow and ice of indifference the picture of the dashing knight of polo field and battlefield who had ridden, redolent with high romance, into the hitherto unbreached fortress of her heart in the warm May of new love?

His pained, puzzled eyes staring at the emptiness of his car, Ranny stood as one in a trance, saying nothing, thinking everything. He gulped hard once or twice. That was the only outward revelation of his hurt.

Then he felt a friendly, sympathizing grip upon his arm.

It was Clay, who had also remained silent up to this, under the spell of his chum's gloomy mood. Now he said gruffly:

"Where shall I go?" bitterly. "Home to an empty house? To sit and twiddle my thumbs until my wife feels she can suffer along for awhile without the enchanting company of her—lover?"

"Ranny!"

"Oh, I'm sorry!" cynically. "I suppose I am a bit of a cad. It isn't that I mistrust Joan's virtue. I hope, please God, that it hasn't gone that far—yet. But with a woman of Joan's decided will and strong passions—"

"Yes, I understand. It will be one way or the other, very positively. There's no compromise in her make-up. She'll be flamingly loyal to you until you actually give her a divorce. She's that rare sort of woman who can be proud of her virtue without posing as a martyr."

Ranny nodded. It was good to hear Clay speak well of Joan. But then—the fly in the ointment buzzed up under the nose of his consciousness:

"True enough—until she's convinced that I won't give her a divorce! Then, because she's too firm to compromise, she'll just coolly and deliberately, as one might come to any ordinary social or business decision, let herself go!"

Ranny paused, wistfully contemplating the space where Abner's roadster had been parked, and the road where patently it had sped away with the precious freight of his staunch affection.

"Lord, it hurts to think of so fine a woman as Joan throwing herself away on so worthless a lounger as Gratman. Gosh, I wouldn't mind half so much if it were some worthwhile blighter who had vamped her, some chap with at least one or two redeeming traits—like you, for instance!"

"Thanks!" Clay hastily shoved Ranny into the sedan and got in beside him. "But let's be rolling. Drive to town. To the club. We'll have dinner there and talk over what's to be done. Maybe it will be just as well if Joan doesn't find patient little hubby toasting his toes by the fireside and sniffing over her empty slippers and negligee when she tiptoes in!"

The vast field was practically deserted now as they slipped along a poplar lined gravel driveway toward the main road outside. A strange contrast to the vivid scene of the afternoon—the interplay of flashing mallets and brilliant hued jerseys and sleek ponies against a base of rich green and a background of social splendor on the sidelines. The elite crowd had melted away in its numerous fleet of costly equipages. Far across the bare field, single file in the dusk and silhouetted against the afterglow, grooms were leading the tired little polo ponies to hard earned rest and oats in their distant stables.

Only two or three cars remained still parked. They belonged to those of the players who lingered jovially over the "ninth" chukker in the clubhouse.

Usually the life of such a party, Ranny would have been sorely out of place in there at present.

He swung the big car out upon the smooth concrete of the Jericho Turnpike and morosely headed cityward, into the dying light of the day.

"I appreciate your coming with me, Clay, old rowdy, when you might just as well have stayed in there"—indicating the clubhouse with a jerk of his thumb back over his shoulder—"with more cheerful company."

"Bother your appreciation, old son. If there's anyone who understands you it's I. Come, now, tell papa—what's it all about anyway?"

Ranny drove turgidly, with the moody concentration of the sick at heart.

"Oh, you must know that Joan and I haven't been getting along since a month or two after our elopement. Simply couldn't seem to get our tempers to dovetail. The old, old story of two decided personalities clashing—and with all of give and none of take on both sides!"

"You admit, then, a certain culpability?"

"Yes, certainly, up to the time I first began to suspect that another man had entered the case. Since then I've had little spirit to fight much. But before that—well, I'm no sweet angel child, you know. We were, neither of us, chickens of a tender age when we married. Joan was going on for thirty, and right at the full swing of a successful career as an interior decorator—"

"Yes," chuckled Clay, "with all her family's tons of money and no end of swank and pride, she had too much gumption to be an idle society belle. To tell the truth, Ranny, I was surprised when she gave up, even for you, her work as an interior decorator—"

"Huh!" interrupting with a wry grunt, "merely a change in designation! She's been an exterior decorator ever since—decorating me with wrinkles and grey hairs!"

"It was just Joan's nature to elope once she did fall in love. She has positive passions! For ten years every other eligible bachelor in the Register had been setting his chops for her, but she would have none of them. I wonder what fatal attraction you had that you were able to sweep her off her feet—"

"Whatever it was, I've lost it evidently. And Abner Gratman has found it," bitterly.

"Splitting Gratman's head open with a polo ball wouldn't have helped you to recapture it!" Clay warned sharply.

Ranny started visibly. "You knew? Well, I was beside myself—"

"—and trying to pick up split milk with a pitchfork! It can't be done. Now I know that a desiccated and encrusted woman hater like me can't give you remarkably sage advice concerning how to manage a wife, but it seems to me that with a little diligent self-study you might be able to discover what quality it was that you had, but haven't now, that made you interesting to a woman like Joan. Then recapture it."

"I wonder—"

"That's just the trouble! You wonder too much—and do too little. Your conjectures roam afield when doubtless the solution is nearer home. It was something in the essential pattern of your personality that she liked. Perhaps you've grown too domesticated—and she liked you wild."

"Then"—protestingly.

"Patient, my child! Don't combat truth. Before you eat your heart out ascertain if they have really stepped over the bounds. Set a trap for Joan and Abner. If they're living in shame catch them with the proof!"

"Nobody asked you to destroy your copy of that contract?" Frank J. Hogan, defense counsel, asked Harris.

"No, I guess it was just mislaid."

"So far as you know there was no attempt to keep this sale secret, was there?" Wilton J. Lamberman, attorney for Fall, demanded.

"No," Harris replied.

"No code messages or anything like that?"

"No."

More Than Year Spent in Producing Ingram's "Mare Nostrum"

Rex Ingram can always be depended upon to bring something worth while to the screen. With "Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea), his latest production for Metro-Goldwyn, which comes to the Park theatre Saturday and Sunday, the youthful director has again delivered one hundred per cent. It is a powerful modern drama produced and directed by a master craftsman.

Ingram took his entire company to Europe and spent more than a year producing the famous Blasco Ibanez story on the original locations described by the noted author in his book.

Olive Borden and Geo. O'Brien in "Fig Leaves" at Lyceum

"Fig Leaves," the new Fox Film comedy-drama which is now showing at the Lyceum Theatre, takes us back to that far away time when Adam and Eve got the idea that two can live as cheaply as one and decided to give it a try in the Garden of Eden.

Men and women being what they are, life in Paradise was not different from the life of today, for as usual she hadn't a thing to wear.

The highlight of the modern sequence is an elaborate fashion revue which has been photographed in Technicolor, a new process that shows the gorgeous gowns in all the beauty of their original coloring.

Zane Grey Romance-Drama Opens at Lyceum Thursday

Paramount has filmed another of those red-blooded stories from the facile pen of Zane Grey, and this high-powered western drama, "Forlorn River," will make its local debut tomorrow at the Lyceum Theatre.

As in all Zane Grey productions, the locations were chosen with the greatest fidelity possible to the actual locale of the original story. In this instance, Zion National Park in Utah was used as a background.

New York, Nov. 24. — (UP)—Jackson Barnett, Creek Indian and reputed to be the wealthiest of his race told Federal Judge John C. Knox today that he never had signed any paper which would authorize anybody to give any of his money to any school.

His testimony came soon after the aged Jackso nwas called to the witness stand by Judge Knox, who is hearing the suit brought by Elmer Bailey, Barnett's guardian, to void the gift of $550,000 of Jackson's fortune to the American Baptist Home Mission society for the benefit of the Bacon Indian school in Oklahoma.

Even Rice Hurt Stomach, Says Girl

"I had indigestion so bad that I was afraid to eat anything. Couldn't even eat rice. Adlerika has done me so much good that now I eat anything. I have taken a lot of medicine but Adlerika is the best."—Ardenia Howard.

Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleansing and brings out old poisons which may have caused trouble for a long time. Unlike most medicines it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never thought was in your system and which caused sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. Johnson's Pharmacy, Economy Drug Co. and other druggists. —Advt

WANTS TO BREAK SHELL OF CAPITALISM

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—(UP)—Breaking of the shell of capitalism, out of which will come a new social order where profits of industry will accrue to the man who earns them, was predicted for the next quarter century by Bishop William Montgomery Brown in an address here. Bishop Brown was ousted from the Protestant Episcopal church for uttering heresies against the established order.

Ligening the working class to a chick in a shell, the deposed ecclesiastic declared that capitalism must be broken if workers are to get the "abundant life" promised by the christian religion.

CHECK ATTACKS ON YOUNG GIRLS

Chicago, Nov. 24. — (UP)—With arrest and confession of G. U. Carson, 21, and Theodore Banco, 20, bith of Two Harbors, Minn., police today believed they had checked a series of attacks on young girls.

Carson is said by police to have admitted he assaulted Florence Stavrum as she was returning from a girl scout meeting Nov. 5. The girl is still suffering from the attack in a local hospital.

Police were summoning scores of girls who were victims of a recent epidemic of criminal attacks in the same district, in the hope of identifying the prisoners as the assailants.

Truth Is Mighty

Truth is a very deadly thing at last when it confronts the clever liar at a place where he cannot escape. If he tries the air instead of the sea, the bizarre and fascinating little structure which was meant to defy the universe bursts into flame and perishes at contact with a flash of truth.—Dr. Lynn Hough.
